PRESS STATEMENT NO. 327
12 September 1974

DEATH OF FRANK GREEN

Frank Green was one of the outstanding public servants of our generation. For 22 years he was an observer and recorder of some of the greatest events in the nation's history. His devotion to the cause of democracy and parliamentary government, his lively involvement in the dramas and personalities of the political scene and his deep concern for the reputation of parliament and the rights of its members, endeared him to all who worked with him in the service of the Australian people.

I feel a personal loss as I have been associated with the Green family since I came to Canberra with my own family in 1928. I have long valued his friendship and advice.

I believe I speak for all my parliamentary colleagues in extending our deepest sympathy to his widow and family.
